

Inclusive Schools Week 2012

Inclusion is more than a seat in a class!

Inclusive Schools Week (ISW)

Inclusive Schools Week is an annual event dedicated to empowering educators, administrators, and families with the tools necessary to create inclusive classrooms. While highlighting the progress made toward supporting students challenged by disability, gender, poverty, cultural heritage, and language, the week also allows the DC community to discuss next steps for improving classroom inclusivity.

DC is Committed to Inclusive Classrooms

The District of Columbia understands that Inclusion is more than a seat in a class. For the first time ever, education stakeholders in the District of Columbia will conclude a series of events celebrating Inclusive Schools Week with an Inclusive Schools Capstone on February 4, 2013. Participants of Inclusive Schools events will enjoy dynamic trainings, engaging performances, and best practice workshops from the District's top education professionals.
